Dimmed but undying—

SOPHOMORES

Those long months of anticipating . . . and waiting . . . and suddenly . . . we were here . . . listening spellbound to the first day's morning announcements . . . one-way hallways, up and down stairways: confusion . . . sighs of relief as we found our first classes . . . and then, everything fell quietly into place.

The soft hum of activities began, and from the start we wanted to be a part of it . . . electing officers and holding class meetings . . . looking forward to the Barn Dance . . . supporting our first Sophomore football team . . . busily planning our Valentine's Day Dance.

Sophomore Class Officers and Advisors. Seated: B. Glover, Secretary; L. Kuzman, President. Standing: M. Blake, Treasurer; Mrs. Beatrice Gursie, Mr. Charles Tucker, Advisors; E. Baron, Vice President.

Sophomore Embers Representatives: J. Ritter, N. Perro, K. Dodd, K. Seremi, S. Ricker, S. Hulse.

Cramming last minute homework into the few remaining minutes before homeroom . . . finding our "up-and-in, down-and-out" in Speech class . . . infiltration of the lines: co-ed gym . . .

Trying to overcome the "hunt-'n-peck" system in typing . . . around the world in 180 days of geography.

Throughout the day our skills are developed . . . we reach new horizons . . . and with our eyes on the future, we attain our ambitions.

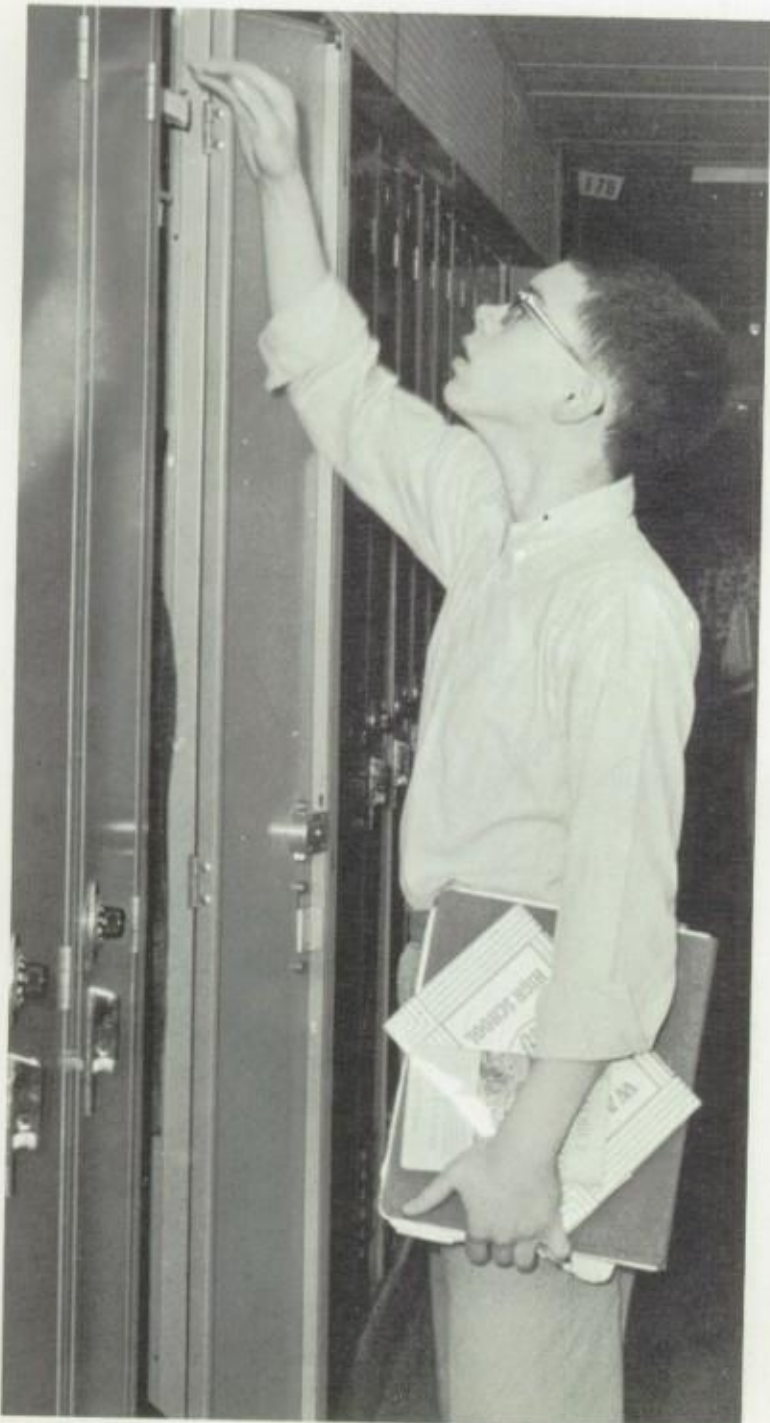

No, Soph . . . Wait . . . Don't do it . . .

Too Late!!

Bumping to school again on those familiar yellow buses . . .
 Memorizing complicated locker combinations . . .
 Feeling the excitement of a first driving lesson . . .
 Wearing a class ring . . .
 Taking nerve-racking College Boards . . .
 Fumbling with notecards for a term paper . . .
 Learning the metric system in a chem class . . .
 Just being a Junior . . .
 Anxiously waiting to assume the title of Senior . . .
 But not ready to leave behind a wonderful year . . .

THE JUNIOR CLASS

7:40 A.M. . . . first period . . . Monday . . . what could be more stimulating?!

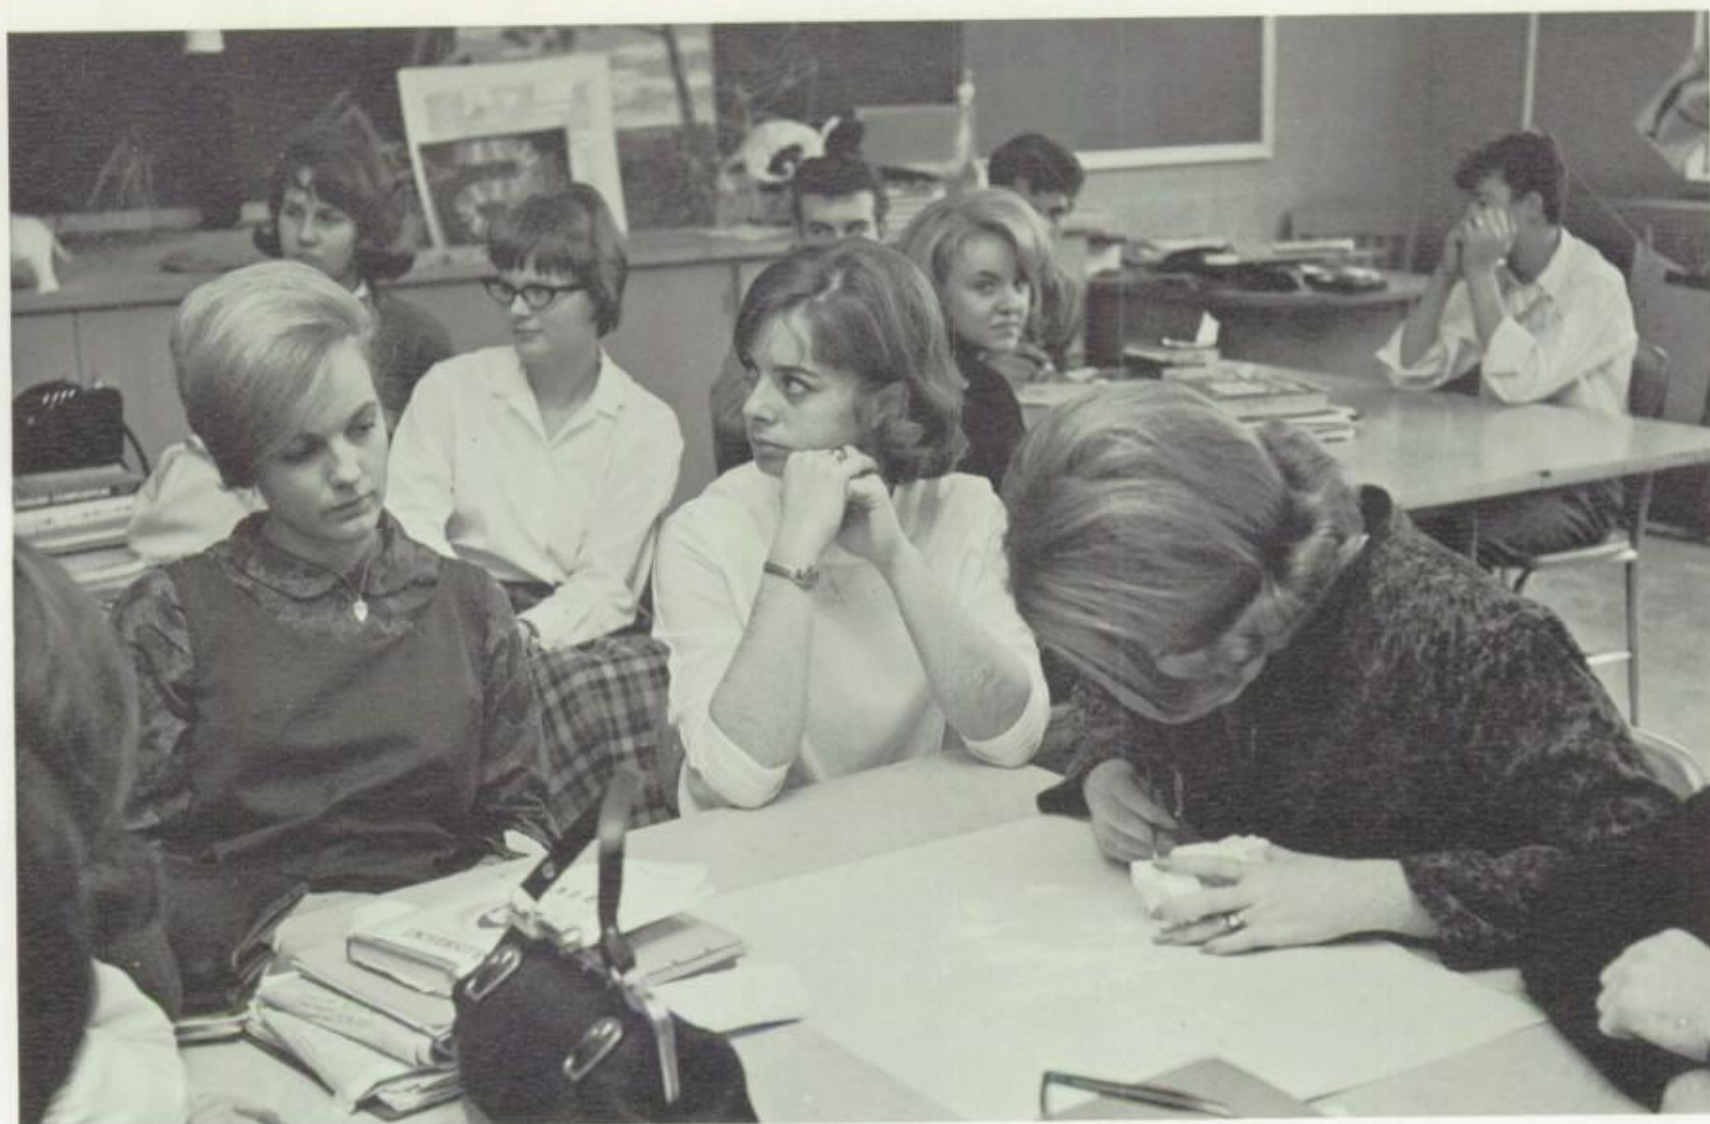

But . . . somehow the daily routine of class always gets under way.

10:00 . . . third period . . . boys in Latin III discuss the Aeneid . . . girls volley for serve . . . and chemistry equations are balanced.

12:37 . . . fifth period art students display their talents through sculpture . . . and finally, after New York Times articles are circled and waiting to be stored in lockers, we are dismissed by the 2:25 bell.

Our class Officers and Advisors. Seated: C. Braumann, Secretary; J. Sherger, President; S. Egli, Vice President; M. Molter, Treasurer. Standing: J. Thibodeau, Assistant Treasurer; Mr. E. Wilson, Mr. J. Wanly, Advisors; P. Marks, Assistant Treasurer.

Junior Embers Representatives: L. Gierisch, G. Miller, C. Braumann, M. Molter, N. Van Wyk.

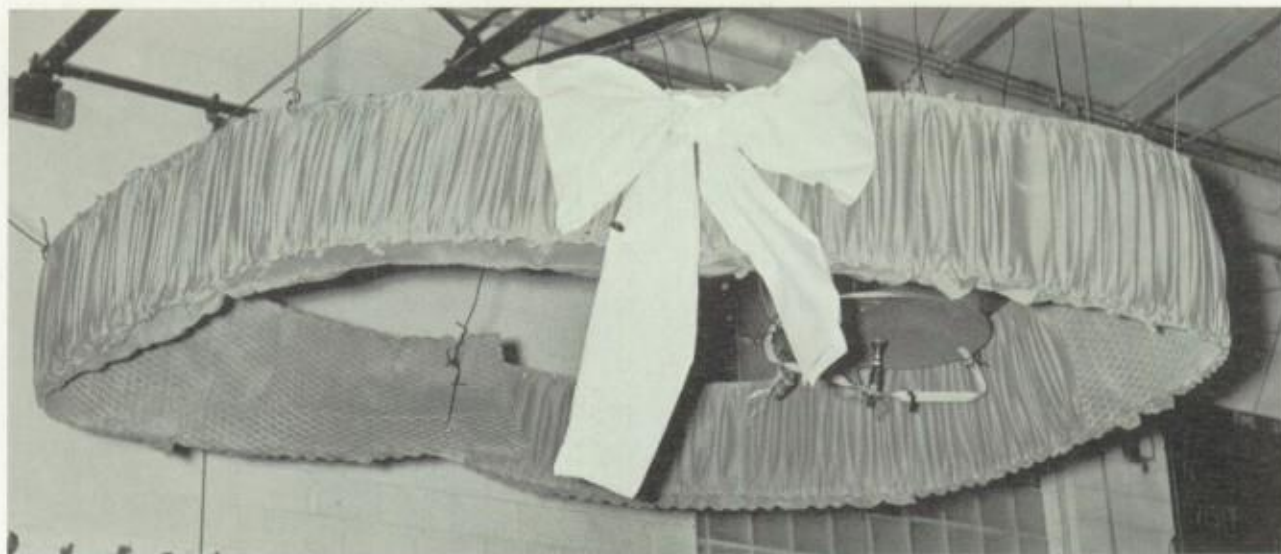

Shoes kicked off . . . we were ready for the first sock hop of the year . . . THE KICK-OFF DANCE.

a social . . .

. . . and a financial success.

T H E R E D G A R T E R

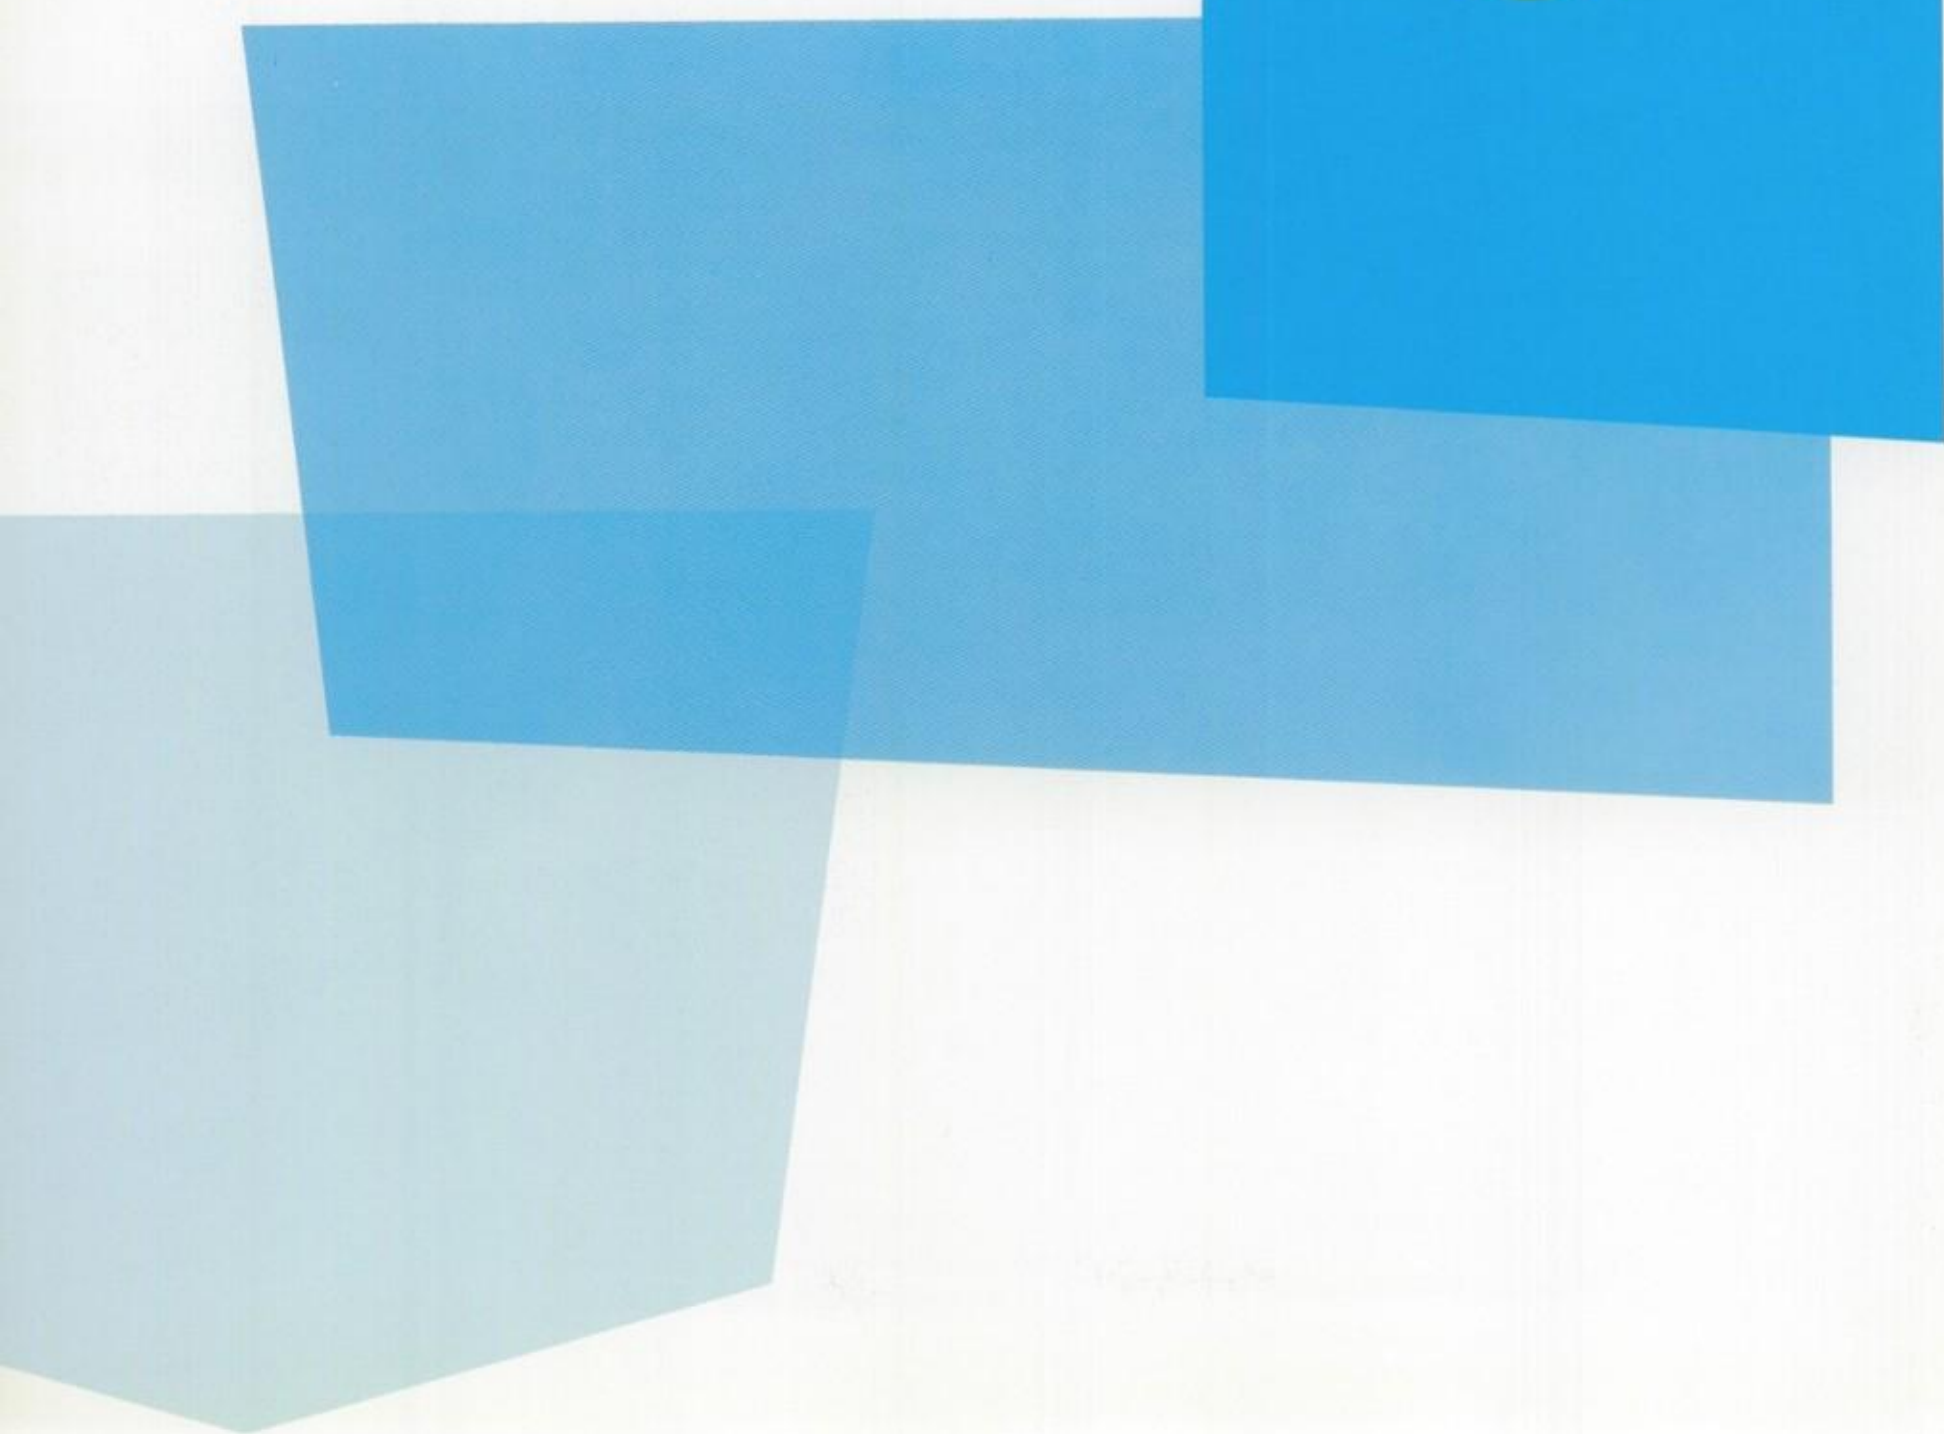

February 28th and 29th—
 unforgettable dates for the Junior Class . . . weeks of preparation — decorations, costumes, food, and publicity — order pads and microphones, bubble machines and hat check stubs — the last few days were hectic and hurried — but we did it. Thanks to Mr. Sealy, our class mascot, the entertainers (especially "The Roaches"), our masters-of-ceremonies — J. Marra and R. Allison, the faculty, the administration, and the two hundred Juniors who worked so hard, our "speakeasy" was a "roaring" success!

GUIDANCE

August: the new IBM machine efficiently (and noisily) turns out schedules. September: the same schedules are changed. October: PSAT time; for juniors, life will never be the same again. November: "At least one application by Christmas!" The Great Wait begins. December: College Boards are over. January: hours of achievement tests; the first few fortunate acceptances are announced. February: juniors begin colossal catalogue collections; class ranks are finally final. March: NMSQT (Now Most Seniors Quit Thinking). April: "List the subjects you want to take next year." May: juniors undergo the SAT; college acceptances multiply. June: a short reprieve, and then — July: summer school, and next year's scheduling. Poor guidance — don't they ever get a vacation?

HONOR SOCIETY

A busy year for Wayne High School's biggest club . . . exchanging summer gossip on the hamburger line at the annual picnic . . . a crowded library and "we can't hear you, Bernie" . . . blue-and-gold arm-bands for P.T.A. guides . . . slides and talks . . . "I feel terrific!" . . . children's books for a Peace Corps school . . . "Wayne book covers, two for a quarter" . . . tutoring teaches the tutor, too . . . the honor roll, a quarterly chore . . . student-faculty basketball and "look at the cheerleaders!" . . . wet ice and Coke at the skating party . . . Hello, Dolly! and luncheon in New York . . . the cafeteria transformed for the P.T.A. banquet. Now the year ends with a beginning, the induction ceremony for new members. Carnations and candles and a pin worn with pride as a personal symbol of scholarship, character, leadership, and service. And, in June, golden tassels for graduation. With us always, from one beginning to another, historically ours, Mrs. Tucker.

Smoking charcoal and juicy hamburgers . . . all part of the yearly Honor Society picnic.

The flames have quieted . . .
The sparks . . . the flickering lights are gone . . .
Smoldering coals remain.

Flash across the mind's kaleidoscope
And brighten the dusky twilight with these memories . . .

THIS IS THE Freshmen:

A class split in two . . . some confused by the enormity of Wayne High School . . . some still securely settled at Anthony Wayne . . . for most, a year of "firsts" — beginning with freshman orientation . . . then into the swing of things full force . . . foreign languages . . . science projects . . . freshman football . . . varsity sports . . . shakers, cheerleaders, pep rallies . . . selling magazines . . . GAA ("Are you Blue or White?") . . .

A year of discovering "traditions" . . . planning schedules . . . remembering to walk around the Spark . . . locating strategic places (the guidance office, the health office, the school store, the rest rooms — locked, as usual) . . . recognizing those well-known teachers: Mr. and Mrs. Caruso; "TZ" and "Woody" of Herman Was Right fame; and the "inseparables", Miss Walsh and Miss Carmen . . .

A year of decision . . . Should I try out? What clubs should I join? . . . What'll I take next year? . . . Can't I drop Algebra I, p-l-e-a-s-e?

Freshmen impressed by . . . an apprehensive encounter with Mr. Grady . . . Guys and Dolls . . . The Man Who Came To Dinner . . . words of wisdom issuing forth from speakers on the wall "If you can't hear this announcement, please call the office" . . . and, oh, those experienced, sophisticated seniors!

A little timid, a little lonely . . . but on our way: our entry into high school . . . through every means but the Senior Door.

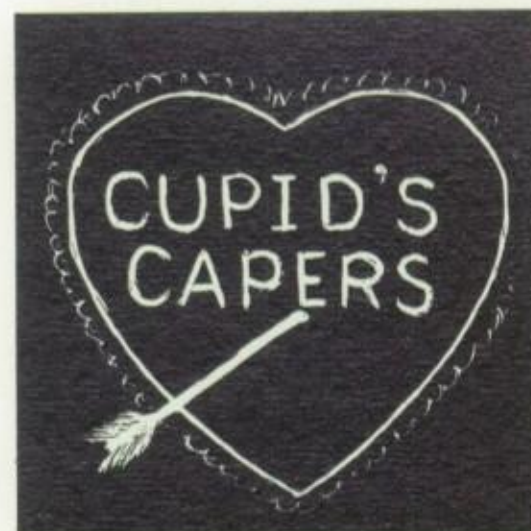

Guys and Dolls

CLASS THAT WAS - - -

Sophomores:

The beginning of class unity, as we got to know our advisors, Mr. Grundy and Mrs. Stephens . . . new arrivals wondered how we ever found anything . . . for the rest of us — experiences no longer new, not yet old . . . class elections . . . dues . . . cheering for our star athletes — classmates who made varsity teams . . . a GAA-sponsored Sadie Hawkin's Dance . . . "Cupid's Capers" in February . . . high hopes as some of us handed in late applications, crossed our fingers, and waited for the "tagging" assembly and Honor Society membership . . . cooperation among classes in the first-rate performances of Our Town and the magnificent King and I . . . and fun at the all-day carnival, "Council Capers."

Some things were strictly ours: a year of English divided between literature and speech . . . Shakespeare through Julius Caesar ("O judgment, thou art fled . . .") . . . the study of plants, animals, and note-taking as we were introduced to the wonders of biology . . . theorems and axioms — the proof of geometry . . . a one-year reprieve from the rigors of a history course . . . a new English curriculum — we lost the traditional American authors . . . the first year for the vigorous physical fitness tests . . . the last year for the unique period 2A . . . and for us as underclassmen.

The King & I

Juniors:

A continuation of events — personal, school, national . . . John Glenn went into orbit around the earth . . . and current events students went into orbit about the newspaper strike . . . the GAA controversy caused quite a stir . . . and so did a clinically detailed film and a plumber from the Temperance Society . . .

Still more phenomena . . . a mad, mad, mad, mad crush at the main desk — blue-and-gold rings for new upperclassmen . . . classical capitalism: the sale of magazines, potato chips, and candy by the juniors . . . “1-2-3, testing” — PSAT, NMSQT, CEEB . . .

Tests, tests, and more tests kept us on our toes in every class . . . Tom Jones introduced us to Cliff's Notes . . . “65-70 index cards due Monday” . . . then a hectic Sunday night as we started our term papers . . . “Double, double toil and trouble”/students burn as teachers bubble over Macbeth . . . books, assignment sheets, and voluminous notes in American History I . . . shattered glass meant flattened wallets in chem lab . . . learning about speed limits and braking distance — the theory behind “behind the wheel” . . . five marking periods of “academic adventure” . . .

Non-academic activities also kept us hustling . . . it was the first time we won the Lakeland Conference for the second time . . . we paid a Visit to a Small Planet . . . bade goodbye to Birdie . . . and put on our shiniest faces for the evaluating committee . . . prom planning was exhausting but rewarding . . . as we made our way across the unpaved parking lot into the mystical beauty of “Starlight Shangri-La” . . .

Finally, at the end of an active junior year, our first unobstructed walk through the Senior Door.

Bye, Bye Birdie

Seniors:

The Senior Door, ours now "between 5 A.M. and 5 P.M." — and what our first walk through it led to! . . . more work, more activities, more responsibilities, more worries: the base on which our new prestige rested . . .

Our school, familiar, but not without changes: new schedules — longer staggered sessions . . . no waking-up period before our first class . . . "a moment of silent meditation" . . . A and B, lunch and study . . . a labyrinth of one-way doors and "up" and "down" stairs . . . J.V. soccer, our newest sport . . . Mlle. Walsh went to "gaie Paree" — and returned . . . locks on lockers briefly interrupted our honor system . . . "Miss Carm — Mrs. Tucker . . ."

Scholarly and purely noneducational matters marched on . . . returning graduates recounted their experiences at a senior assembly . . . twelve of the "top twenty" competed in the Knowledge Bowl (How do you spell "mischeivious"?). . . girls were relieved not to don gymsuits for archery, but boys were not relieved to find them shooting toward their field . . . Mr. Domin continued to play with his slinky . . . Odetta came to Wayne and the Beatles came to New York . . . more opportunities for leadership as some of us became presidents, editors, captains . . .

We realized a world outside our own with the death of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

"I was accepted!" . . . with a sudden recognition we grew a little sentimental over our "big senior year" — bunny-hopping at the EMBERS pizza party . . . swaying to the soft music of "Wonderland by Night" . . . bouncing to the beat of the live band at the Sadie Hawkin's Dance . . . our off-Broadway production — The Great Big Doorstep . . . and an "enchanted evening" at South Pacific . . . our basketball team brought in the Lakeland Conference championship again . . . and we dribbled out to our private patio . . . the Senior Assembly released our inhibitions . . . we represented Wayne at the World's Fair . . . the music, the motion, the magic mood of our last prom brought the year to a close . . .

A silken tassel, culmination of four years . . . four years in which we worked and worried . . . dawdled and danced . . . yelled and yawned . . . mocked and mourned . . . laughed and lived . . . four years closer to maturity . . . so much to learn . . . so much to think about . . . so much to do . . . so many memories — the embers of the class that was . . .

South Pacific

SADNESS IS . . .

a part of — and yet apart from — our lives.

One Friday afternoon —
Faces shocked,
Minds disbelieving,
Hearts sorrowful,
And tears . . .
Tears of shame and sadness flowed.
We could not comprehend the deed
Nor reason out the why.

November 22, 1963, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy died. Doubt . . . bewilderment . . . ultimate realization . . . were experienced by the American people.

The nation was stunned. No one believed . . . no one wanted to believe the terrible rumors. Slowly . . . slowly . . . rumors were fact. Men and women wept . . . questioned . . . reflected. The perplexities of how . . . why . . . who . . . are still partially unanswered. Feelings were mirrored by hopeless . . . confused . . . dazed stares.

Then chaos shifted to organization. The new President gave the grief-stricken nation unity . . . dignity . . . security. The machinery of the world stopped for a moment . . . and then moved on. Our memories . . . like embers . . . perpetuate the image and maintain respect for the man . . . and the American . . . John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

To GRADUATES and STUDENTS

Good grades are important! Important not in themselves, but as an indication of the student's sense of responsibility, orientation and direction. They often indicate the student's ability to apply himself to a problem and arrive at a solution . . . a measure of effort that's highly important to employers and colleges. To graduates entering business, college or whatever path they may choose, we extend our congratulations. To those whose graduation is yet to come, we extend our best wishes in future academic endeavors.
